Is my Non-Profit ready to move on from “Accidental IT?” 1/9/17

Technology is a key element in keeping your non-profit running smoothly. With the programs and services that we utilize changing almost daily, you need someone to oversee your systems to ensure that you are staying as productive as you can be, don't even get us started on all the various technology laws and regulations! For most non-profits, this falls on the office manager or what we call “Accidental IT”. What if your needs outgrow your current “Accidental IT” staff person or volunteer? Then what do you do? Managed IT service providers can help in these cases and oftentimes do so much more. In this workshop, we will discuss what Managed IT means, and how to tell if you really need these services and can your non-profit afford to have it, or...afford not to?

OH NO!!! FIRE IN THE FILE HOUSE! NOW WHAT? 2/13/17

What happens when an emergency strikes and you lose all your financial, client and donor data? Could you continue to operate if you lost this mission critical information? What is your plan to keep staff working and your organization running during and after a technology loss? Come learn about data backup and recovery as well as options for insurance. You wouldn't dream of not carrying umbrella coverage, liability insurance, vehicle insurance or health insurance so why leave your data exposed and uncovered? We cover ourselves in case something happens to the physical property of the non-profit, but what about the data we store, use and rely on every day? We will discuss the reasons why you need a disaster recovery plan and steps you can take to develop one.

Using Tech to “Top up” your Fundraising Game 3/13/17

Technology is everywhere, optimize this, AdWords that. More and more people including the illusive GenX and Millennials are using it to decide who they will give to and to actually give! (Did you know 8 out of 10 millennial donations are through crowdfunding?) Are you doing everything you can to harness the power of technology to help meet your fundraising goals. From Social Media, Crowdfunding, Giving Tuesday, to online data management and more, we will talk about how to use these tools to connect with your donors in a manner they want and help raise the funds you need.

Office 365 for Non-profits 4/10/17

We all know what Microsoft Office is. We all have gone through the pain of purchasing new licenses when a computer crashes. Office 365 is the subscription version of the popular software. Some non-profits are even entitled to a free copy of the Office 365 subscription for their employee’s use. Our technology consultants will discuss in this workshop what Office365 is, who qualifies for the free version and how you can sign up for your own copy.

Ransomware and Your Important Information 5/8/17

While we are trained as non-profit employees to always find the silver lining and the best in others we do need to realize that the world in full of people and some are just up to no good. They don’t care who they hurt and how much they hurt them. Yes! Even non-profits are targeted by these people. This workshop will go over what Ransomware is, how you get infected and how to help safeguard your organization. We will go over both how to spot ransomware and prevent becoming a victim, as well as how to recover what you lost if you become infected.

Google Apps for Non-profits 6/12/17

Paying for online storage? How about an email with your organization name in the domain? Well pay no more. Google offers a suite of apps and services that is free for non-profits. These apps will help you run your non-profit, and communicate with your volunteers and donors. We will go over what’s available through Google Apps, how you can use all their services to the max, and how to sign up for the service if you qualify.

Google AdWords for Non-profits 7/10/17

Ever wish you could get more exposure online for your non-profit? Organic placement, AdWords and online marketing terms have your head spinning? Google offers a set amount of free advertising on their search engine to non-profits. This advertising is called AdWords. This workshop is designed to explain how AdWords works, and how you can use it to promote your non-profit, and even receive donations.
